

Jerry Coffey It's Blocker-Landon again

The familiar cast pairing of Blocker and Landon will show up on the Nov. 13 episode of NBC's "Little House on the Prairie."

Dirk Blocker, son of the late Dan Blocker, will guest star in the episode with Michael Landon, his father's close friend and "Bonanza" co-star for many years who now is star and executive producer of "Little House."

Young Blocker, 17, will play a large youth with limited education who is laughed out of class by the other pupils.

The idea originated not with Landon but with director Leo Penn. Dirk was visiting Penn's son Sean one day when Penn, who had just been assigned to direct the "Little House" episode, came into the room, gave the boys a casual hello, then did a double take and quickly got on the phone to Landon, who agreed young Blocker would be perfect for the guest role.

Though just a high school senior, Blocker is no novice at acting. He had a role on "Lucas Tanner" recently and has had considerable stage experience at school and with a little theater group, displaying remarkable versatility. He went from the title role in "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" to the lead in "Marat-Sade."

NOT TO BE outdone by NBC's $10 million acquisition of "The Godfather," ABC has come up with three times as many godfathers at one-twentieth of the cost. However, the production of "Three Godfathers" for "Movie of the Week" has nothing to do with the Mafia. It's a Peter B. Kyne story about three fugitives who rescue a baby in the desert, and this will mark the sixth time it's been filmed. The last time was by John Ford in 1948 with John Wayne. The new TV version will star Jack Palance, Jack Warden, Keith Carradine, Ed Lauter and Jose Perez.

Channel 8 News is running a multipart Ellen Burstein report on "Cancer: A Long Way to Go" on its 6 and 10 p.m. news shows all this week.

Channel 5's "Texas '74" magazine at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday will have stories on a North Texas State prof who hunts lizards with a blowgun, an Eastland man who is the No. 1 menu printer in the country, and the LBJ historic site near Johnson City.

"The Mike Douglas Show" on Channel 8 at 8:30 a.m. weekdays is originating this week in Moscow.

TELEVISION'S fascination with fact-based crime stories continues: The first of Quinn Martin's "FBI Story" case histories, "Alvin Karpis, Public Enemy Number One," is scheduled on CBS Friday Nov. 8 with Robert Foxworth as Karpis, Eileen Heckart as Ma Barker and Harris Yulin as J. Edgar Hoover.

NBC has announced plans for a "World Premiere" treatment of the notorious Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray murder case in the 1920s.

A new two-hour "Sherlock Holmes" TV movie is in development at NBC.

Lucille Ball's first special of the season, "Happy Anniversary and Goodbye," a book show co-starring Art Carney, is scheduled Nov. 19 on CBS.

Alan Arkin will pay a visit to "Captain Kangaroo" Wednesday morning on CBS.

George C. Scott and his wife, Trish Van Devere, will play "Hollywood Squares," the daytime edition, next week on NBC.

Ford trip security to be tight

TOKYO (AP) — Security will be so tight for President Ford's visit to Japan next month that not even a small error in guarding him will be tolerated, the nation's police chief said Monday.

Setaro Asanuma told state police chiefs to cooperate in protecting Ford because leftists are intensifying their campaign against the Nov. 18-22 visit. He gave no details.

It will be Ford's first overseas trip as president and the first visit to Japan by any U.S. President. Big anti-American protests forced President Dwight D. Eisenhower to cancel a visit to Japan in 1960.

Leftists and the major opposition parties are opposed to Ford's visit and have planned demonstrations. The more radical groups so far have not said anything about the trip.

There is growing suspicion in Japan that U.S. warships have been bringing nuclear weapons into Japan on port calls despite Japan's ban on such weapons.

There was speculation Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's government might postpone Ford's visit because of the nuclear row.

But informed sources said the government has decided not to ask for a postponement because Ford's visit is a national event for both countries.

LIKE FATHER — Dirk Blocker, 17, son of the late Dan Blocker, will appear with his dad's friend and longtime "Bonanza" co-star Michael Landon on "Little House on the Prairie" Nov. 13.
